Sec. 505. Any person who shall commit any indictable offense at the common law, for the punishment of which no provision is expressly made by any statute of this state, shall be guilty of a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the state prison not more than 5 years or by a fine of not more than $10,000.00, or both in the discretion of the court.

History: 1931, Act 328, Eff. Sept. 18, 1931; □ CL 1948, 750.505; □ Am. 1954, Act 66, Eff. Aug. 13, 1954.

Former law: See section 15 of Ch. IX of Act 175 of 1927, being CL 1929, § 17343.

THE MICHIGAN PENAL CODE (EXCERPT)
Act 328 of 1931

750.120a Willfully attempting to influence juror by intimidation or other improper means; retaliating against person for having performed duties as juror; penalties.

Sec. 120a. (1) A person who willfully attempts to influence the decision of a juror in any case by argument or persuasion, other than as part of the proceedings in open court in the trial of the case, is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for not more than 1 year or a fine of not more than $1,000.00, or both.

(2) A person who willfully attempts to influence the decision of a juror in any case by intimidation, other than as part of the proceedings in open court in the trial of the case, is guilty of a crime as follows:

(a) Except as provided in subdivisions (b) and (c), the person is guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not more than 4 years or a fine of not more than $5,000.00, or both.

(b) If the intimidation is committed in a criminal case for which the maximum term of imprisonment for the violation is more than 10 years, or the violation is punishable by imprisonment for life or any term of years, the person is guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not more than 10 years or a fine of not more than $20,000.00, or both.

(c) If the intimidation involved committing or attempting to commit a crime or a threat to kill or injure any person or to cause property damage, the person is guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not more than 15 years or a fine of not more than $25,000.00, or both.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not prohibit any deliberating juror from attempting to influence other members of the same jury by any proper means.

(4) A person who retaliates, attempts to retaliate, or threatens to retaliate against another person for having performed his or her duties as a juror is guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not more than 10 years or a fine of not more than $20,000.00, or both. As used in this subsection, "retaliate" means any of the following:

(a) Committing or attempting to commit a crime against any person.

(b) Threatening to kill or injure any person or threatening to cause property damage.

(5) This section does not prohibit a person from being charged with, convicted of, or punished for any other violation of law including any violation of law arising out of the same transaction as the violation of this section.

(6) The court may order a term of imprisonment imposed for violating subsection (2) or (4) to be served consecutively to a term of imprisonment imposed for any other violation of law including any violation of law arising out of the same transaction as the violation of this section.

prirogative to disregard instructions of the judge; for example, acquittals under the fugitive slave law." (473 F.2d 1113)

And let us never forget that in the Nuremberg trials of Nazi war criminals, the defendants argued that they were "only following the law." The Tribunal's response was, quite correctly, that they each had a personal responsibility to judge the morality of the law, and should have acted according to conscience!

How can one person make a difference?

BE ALERT! Almost everyday, new attempts are made to limit jury power, mostly via subtle changes in the rules of the courtroom procedure, sometimes by court decisions, legislation, or by the creation of special courts that do not allow jury trials for the accused.

BE AWARE! Thousands of harmless people are in prison simply because their juries weren't fully informed. U.S. now leads the world in percent of population behind bars! New prisons are springing up everywhere, and too many of them are filling up with people whose only "crime" was to displease the government "master", not to victimize anyone (in other words, political prisoners).

BE ACTIVE! Tell others what you know about jury veto power!* Before a jury reaches a verdict, each member should consider:

- 1. Is this a good law?
- 2. If so, is the law being justly applied?
- 3. Was the Bill of Rights honored in the arrest?
- 4. Will the punishment fit the crime?

Is there a local FIJA group?

Probably—most people who receive this leaflet get it from someone on a team of local activists. Local activists may also be working with lawmakers for passage of FIJA legislation; others may be participating in radio talk shows or placing ads and public service announcements speaking to other local groups, or otherwise getting the word out.

Since 1991, local FIJA groups in 18 states have persuaded their state governors to proclaim September 5 (the day of Penn's acquittal) as "Jury Rights Day", often celebrating it by issuing news releases and leafleting courthouses—thus using our First Amendment right to explain how juries can protect the rest of our rights, simply by acquitting defendants been charged with breaking a bad law.

*Discretion may be the better part of valor: FIJA activists have been so effective at telling jurors the truth about jury veto power that judges and prosecutors nowadays not only try to keep fully informed citizens off of juries, but also have sometimes charged those who do inform them with contempt of court, even with jury tampering. So, if you decide to "be active", we advise you to observe any court order directed at your leafleting or other educational activity, and if you are empaneled to serve on a jury, not to distribute jury-power educational literature to your fellow jurors.

- TO RECEIVE MORE INFORMATION -

Call 1-800-TEL-JURY, and tell FIJA where to send your free Jury Power Information Package. It contains a history of jury veto power and tells what to do if you're going to be on a jury (or facing one). It also includes information on how you can support FIJA and a form for ordering materials.

The Fully Informed Jury Association maintains a useful web site. It contains additional information about jury veto power, about FIJA, lists state coordinators and has archived files of our newsletters.

True Or False?

When you sit on a jury, you may vote on the verdict according to your conscience.

"True", you say—and you're right. But then ...

Why do most judges tell you that you may consider "only the facts"—that you must not let your conscience, opinion of the law, or the motives of the defendant affect your decision?

In a trial by jury, the judge's job is to referee the event and provide neutral legal advice to the jury, properly beginning with a full explanation of a juror's rights and responsibilities.

But judges only rarely "fully inform" jurors of their rights, especially their right to judge the law itself and vote on the verdict according to conscience. In fact, judges regularly assist the prosecution by dismissing prospective jurors who will admit knowing about this right—beginning with anyone who also admits having qualms with the law.

We can only speculate on why: Disrespect for the idea of government "of, by, and for the people"? Unwillingness to share power? Distrust of the citizenry? Fear that prosecutors may damage their careers, saying they're "soft on crime"? Ignorance of the rights that jurors necessarily acquire when they take on the responsibility of judging an accused person?

because people have individual, independent feelings, opinions, wisdom, experience and conscience that we depend upon jurors to refuse to mindlessly follow the dictates of a judge or of a bad law.

So, when it's your turn to serve, be aware:

1. You may, and should, vote your conscience;
2. You cannot be forced to obey a "juror's oath";
3. You have the right to "hang" the jury with your vote if you cannot agree with other jurors!

What is FIJA, the Fully Informed Jury Association?

FIJA is a national educational non-profit organization which tells citizens more about FIJA their rights, powers, and duties as jurors than they are likely to be told in court.

FIJA believes that "liberty and justice for all" won't return to America until citizens are again fully informed of—and using—their power as jurors.

Return? Did judges fully inform jurors of their rights in the past?

Yes, it was normal procedure in the early days of our nation, and in colonial times. And if the judge didn't tell them, the defense attorney often would. America's founders realized that trials by juries of ordinary citizens, fully informed of their powers as jurors, would confine the government to its proper role as the servant, not the master, of the people.

Our third president, Thomas Jefferson, put it like this: "I consider trial by jury as the only anchor yet imagined by man by which a government can be held to the principles of its constitution."

John Adams, our second president had this to say about the juror: "It is not only his right, but his duty...to find the verdict according to his own best understanding, judgment, and conscience, though in direct opposition to the direction of the court."

These sound like voices of experience. Were they?

Yes. Only decades had passed since freedom of the press was established in the colonies when a jury decided John Peter Zenger was "not guilty" of seditious libel. He was charged with this "crime" for printing true, but damaging news stories about the Royal Governor of New York Colony.

"Truth is no defense," the court told the jury! But the jury decided to reject bad law and acquitted Zenger. Why? Because defense attorney Andrew Hamilton informed the jury of its rights; he told the story of William Penn's trial—of the courageous London jury which refused to find him guilty of preaching what was then an illegal religion (Quakerism). His jurors stood by their verdict even though they were held without food, water, or toilet facilities for several days.

They were then fined and imprisoned for acquitting Penn—until England's highest court acknowledged their right to reject both law and fact, and to find a verdict according to conscience. It was exercise of that right in the Penn trial which eventually led to recognition of free speech, religious freedom, and peaceful assembly as individual rights.

American colonists regularly depended on juries to thwart bad law sent over from England. The British then restricted trial by jury and other rights which juries had helped secure. Result? The Declaration of Independence and the American Revolution. Afterwards, to protect the rights they'd fought for from future attack, the founders of the new nation placed trial by jury—meaning tough, fully informed juries—in both the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Bad law—special-interest legislation which tramples our rights—is no longer sent here from Britain. But our own legislatures keep us well supplied. Now more than ever, we need juries to protect us!

Why haven't I heard about "jury veto power" or "jury rights" before?

During the 1800s, powerful special interest groups inspired a series of judicial decisions which tried to limit jury veto power. While no court has yet dared to deny that juries can "nullify" or "veto" a law, or "bring in a general verdict (i.e., judging both law and fact)", the Supreme Court in 1895 held, hypocritically, that jurors need not be told their rights!

That's why, these days, it's a rare and courageous attorney who will risk being cited for contempt for informing the jury about its rights without obtaining the judge's prior approval. It's also why the idea of jury rights is not taught in (public) schools. Still, the jury's power to reject bad law continues to be recognized, as in 1972 when the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals held that the jury has an ...
